

Eighth Grade Art Class

Eighth grade students have been creating all of those projects that they have been waiting 7 years to do! They have done linoleum block prints in black and gold ink, drawing, painting, and are currently working on those large plaster animals that will soon be on display. The animal's armature is made out of newspapers and tape, then layered with plaster craft tape, which is dipped in water then rubbed smooth. In the attached photographs, most of them are finishing up and painting with tempera paint. After Christmas break, they will be studying the architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright and building balsa wood models of Wright styled buildings.
